1. Submission of Notification of Death and Cremation

In general, a Notification of Death has to be submitted within 7 days from the day of death by an eligible person. A representative can submit it on your behalf. It is common for the representative of the funeral company to bring the Notification of Death when they come to carry out the cremation procedures.

Once the Notification of Death has been submitted, various certificates can be issued at administrative organizations. Please continue reading for more information.

2. Issuance of Certificates after the Submission of the Notification of Death

In this section, we outline the estimated time taken to issue the certificates for the deceased and how to acquire these after submission of the Notification of Death. Various applications such as pension and insurance, as well as procedures for inheritance require documents to prove the person in question on the certificates has passed away, so please read the explanations carefully.
